1. About

1.1 Principles

CRC foundation is founded upon three fundamental principles forming the foundation of its organizational identity and purpose. CRC GSTU adopts a set of Guiding Values to translate the fundamental principles into organizational practice. Together, the Fundamental Principles and Guiding Values provide the ethical and organizational framework for CRC GSTU branch.

1.1.1 Fundamental principles

1. Brotherhood

“CRC GSTU promotes a spirit of brotherhood, solidarity, mutual respect, and care among its members and volunteers and encourages them to work together as one community.”

Brotherhood reflects the belief that members are part of a common community working towards a shared purpose. It encourages mutual support, compassion, cooperation, and a sense of belonging while recognizing and respecting the individuality and contribution of every member.

2. Commitment

“CRC GSTU remains committed to its mission and objectives and encourages its members and volunteers to serve with sincerity, dedication, perseverance, and a spirit of responsibility.”

Commitment means more than participation in organizational activities. It involves a willingness to remain dedicated to the organization's purpose, fulfill responsibilities, overcome challenges, and continue serving even when circumstances are difficult. Through commitment, CRC GSTU seeks to turn its ideals into sustained action.

3. Trust

“CRC GSTU seeks to earn and protect the trust of the people it serves, its members, volunteers, partners, and the wider community through honesty, integrity, confidentiality, and sincere service.”

Trust is essential to meaningful and lasting service. CRC GSTU recognizes that children, beneficiaries, families, members, and partners place confidence in the organization and its people. Members are therefore expected to act honestly, protect confidential information, respect commitments, and use that trust responsibly.

1.1.2 Guiding Values

1. Empathy

“CRC GSTU seeks to understand the circumstances, feelings, needs, and aspirations of the people it serves, particularly children and disadvantaged communities, and responds with compassion and care.”

Empathy enables CRC GSTU to look beyond immediate needs and understand the experiences of those it seeks to support. It encourages members and volunteers to listen, understand, and respond sensitively to the realities faced by underprivileged children and other vulnerable members of society.

2. Respect

“CRC GSTU recognizes the dignity and worth of every person and treats children, beneficiaries, members, volunteers, and community members with fairness, dignity, and respect.”

Respect is fundamental to every interaction undertaken by CRC GSTU. The organization seeks to create an environment in which every individual feels valued and heard, regardless of their background, circumstances, or position. Particular care shall be taken to protect the dignity and well-being of children and vulnerable people.

3. Non-discrimination

“CRC GSTU provides its services, opportunities, and participation without unfair discrimination based on race, nationality, religion, gender, social status, political opinion, or other personal characteristics.”

CRC GSTU believes that every person deserves equal dignity and fair treatment. No individual shall be excluded from assistance, participation, or opportunities on the basis of characteristics unrelated to their needs or legitimate organizational requirements. The organization seeks to promote an inclusive environment where differences are respected rather than used as grounds for exclusion.

4. Neutrality

“CRC GSTU does not allow political, ideological, personal, or partisan interests to influence its humanitarian and social activities or its service to people in need.”

Neutrality enables CRC GSTU to remain focused on its mission and maintain the confidence of the communities it serves. Members may hold their own personal beliefs and opinions, but the organization's name, resources, platforms, and activities shall not be used to promote partisan interests or create division. CRC GSTU shall remain focused on serving people and communities according to its mission.

5. Responsibility

“CRC GSTU expects every member and volunteer to fulfill their responsibilities with sincerity, accountability, and due regard for the organization's mission, policies, people, and resources.”

Responsibility means taking ownership of one's duties, decisions, and actions. Every member has a role in maintaining the effectiveness, integrity, and reputation of the organization. CRC GSTU encourages its members to perform their responsibilities properly and on time and to accept accountability for the consequences of their actions.

6. Transparency

“CRC GSTU conducts its activities openly and responsibly and promotes transparency, accountability, and appropriate access to information in its organizational affairs.”

Transparency strengthens trust and enables members and stakeholders to understand how the organization operates. CRC GSTU seeks to maintain clear and responsible processes for decision-making, financial management, reporting, and the use of organizational resources while respecting necessary confidentiality and privacy.

7. Teamwork

“CRC GSTU achieves its objectives through cooperation, participation, communication, and collective action, recognizing that meaningful and sustainable impact is strengthened when people work together.”

Teamwork brings together the knowledge, skills, experiences, and efforts of different individuals. CRC GSTU encourages members and volunteers to support one another, share knowledge, communicate openly, and work collectively toward common objectives. Individual contributions are valued as part of a greater collective effort.

8. Learning & Growth

“CRC GSTU promotes continuous learning, personal development, knowledge sharing, and the improvement of its members, volunteers, and organizational practices.”

CRC GSTU recognizes that an organization serving society must continue to learn and improve. Members and volunteers are encouraged to develop their knowledge and skills, learn from experience, share what they know, receive constructive feedback, and seek better ways of serving the community. Continuous learning strengthens both individual capacity and the long-term effectiveness of the organization.

1.2. Vision:

We envision a child-friendly, humane, and just society free from street children, where every child's fundamental rights are ensured and where love, compassion, and humanity are embraced and promoted throughout society.

1.3. Mission:

Mission	Description
Protection	To safeguard and promote children's fundamental rights, including food, clothing, shelter, healthcare, and education.
Development	To support the social, moral, and psychological development of children and help them grow into confident and responsible individuals.
Awareness	To raise public awareness about children's rights, their needs, and the responsibilities of society toward them.
Engagement	To encourage and empower young people to actively participate in social service and community development.
Humanity	To foster a culture of love, compassion, empathy, and humanity within society.

1.4. Objectives

1. To improve the living conditions, opportunities, and well-being of underprivileged children by addressing their essential educational, health, and welfare needs.
2. To facilitate the holistic development of children by providing opportunities for education, life skills, creativity, social interaction, and personal growth.
3. To increase public awareness and community responsibility regarding children's rights, protection, welfare, and development.
4. To develop an active and capable youth volunteer network through participation, leadership development, training, teamwork, and community service.
5. To cultivate a culture of love, compassion, empathy, and humanity through collective and sustainable social action.

Objectives

Improving the living conditions, opportunities, and well-being of underprivileged children by addressing their essential educational, health, and welfare needs.

We work to identify and respond to the essential needs of underprivileged children, helping create better opportunities for their education, health, welfare, and overall well-being.

Facilitating the holistic development of children by providing opportunities for education, life skills, creativity, social interaction, and personal growth.

We seek to provide children with opportunities not only to learn, but also to develop life skills, express their creativity, interact positively with others, and grow as individuals.

Increasing public awareness and community responsibility regarding children's rights, protection, welfare, and development.

We seek to build greater understanding and responsibility within society so that children's rights, protection, welfare, and development become a shared concern and responsibility.

Developing an active and capable youth volunteer network through participation, leadership development, training, teamwork, and community service.

We aim to create an environment where young people can participate actively, develop leadership and practical skills, work as a team, receive meaningful training, and gain experience through community service.

Cultivating a culture of love, compassion, empathy, and humanity through collective and sustainable social action.

We strive to turn these values into meaningful action by working collectively and sustainably to create positive change in the lives of people and within society.

1.5 Mode of action

Raising awareness

CRC raises awareness to help individuals and communities recognize social issues, understand their responsibilities, and respond positively to the needs of children and vulnerable communities.

Awareness may take the form of campaigns, educational programs, community outreach, public communication, and other appropriate initiatives addressing children's rights, education, health, social responsibility, and humanitarian concerns.

Engaging people

CRC seeks to involve individuals, particularly young people, in addressing social needs and contributing to community development.

This may include mobilizing students, volunteers, alumni, and community members to contribute their time, knowledge, skills, ideas, and resources. Through meaningful participation, CRC creates opportunities for individuals to move beyond awareness and contribute directly to social action.

Collaboration

CRC works with individuals, institutions, organizations, and communities whose knowledge, resources, expertise, or position can contribute to addressing a social need or achieving a common objective.

Where additional support is required, CRC may seek assistance from relevant stakeholders, including educational institutions, professionals, social organizations, donors, community groups, and other appropriate partners. Such support may involve technical expertise, financial or material resources, professional services, volunteer networks, or other forms of assistance. CRC selects and engages collaborators according to the needs of the initiative and the principles and interests of the organization.

Advocacy

CRC may engage with authorities and other responsible stakeholders when a social issue requires action beyond the organization's own capacity.

Through constructive dialogue, evidence, awareness, community engagement, and responsible communication, CRC encourages those responsible to recognize and fulfill their obligations toward children and vulnerable communities. CRC does not seek to replace the responsibilities of competent authorities, but to encourage, support, and contribute to their fulfillment.

Persuasion

Where a member holding a position of responsibility does not fulfill the duties or responsibilities assigned to that position, CRC may seek to encourage the member to take appropriate action through respectful, bilateral dialogue.

Persuasion should first seek to understand the reasons for the failure to perform the responsibility and to encourage the member to address the matter voluntarily. Such dialogue should remain respectful and confidential, where appropriate, and focus on the responsibilities of the position rather than on the individual.

Providing direct support

Where children or communities face needs that require immediate assistance, and where CRC has the capacity to respond, the organization may provide direct support.

Such support may include educational assistance, healthcare initiatives, food and clothing distribution, humanitarian relief, and other welfare activities. Programs such as Hatekhori School, health campaigns, Eid and winter clothing distribution, Iftar programs, and relief initiatives may form part of this approach.

Safeguarding

CRC places the dignity, safety, privacy, rights, and best interests of the people it serves at the center of its actions.

Particular care is required when working with children and vulnerable individuals. CRC therefore takes appropriate measures in the collection and use of personal information and photographs, the conduct of activities, the provision of assistance, and interactions with beneficiaries, ensuring that its actions do not expose them to unnecessary harm, exploitation, discrimination, or loss of dignity.

1.6 Achievements:

Best Branch Prize

CRC GSTU Branch has been nominated for the Best Branch recognition in appreciation of its active participation, impactful initiatives, and continued commitment to serving children and the community.

2. How we run

2.1. Finance

CRC GSTU manages its financial resources through a structured system designed to ensure that funds are collected, allocated, spent, recorded, and reviewed responsibly. Financial activities are governed by the organization's financial policy and overseen by the Permanent Financial Management Committee, which is responsible for monitoring income and expenditure, budgeting, financial planning, reporting, and audit-related matters.

2.1.1 Funding & Spending

CRC GSTU may receive funds through donations, contributions, grants, fundraising initiatives, and other approved sources. Information relating to donations, contributions, and other sources of income is maintained as part of the organization's financial records.

Funds are used to support approved organizational activities and the needs of children and communities. Money collected specifically for children is restricted to their welfare, including food, educational materials, healthcare, gifts, and other appropriate child-focused support.

CRC may also maintain an Emergency Fund for exceptional circumstances such as emergency medical assistance, accidents, and natural-disaster-related support. Expenditure from this fund requires appropriate approval and documentation.

2.1.2 Financial Policy

CRC GSTU's financial activities operate under a dedicated Financial Policy that provides the framework for fund management, budgeting, expenditure approval, financial record-keeping, reporting, and financial oversight.

The Permanent Financial Management Committee oversees the preparation and approval of budgets, reviews project-based expenditure proposals, guides annual and long-term financial planning, and provides direction for diversifying income sources and fundraising activities.

Every financial transaction is properly recorded and supported by appropriate documentation.

2.1.2.1 Expenditure policy

CRC ensures that funds raised or received for a specific purpose are used exclusively for that intended purpose and are not diverted to other organizational activities or expenses. New expenditure requires approval from the Permanent Financial Management Committee before the spending decision is implemented.

2.1.2.2 Transparency & Accountability

CRC maintains records of its income and expenditure and presents financial information to its members. Every expenditure requires supporting evidence, and financial irregularities are subject to appropriate organizational action.

An Audit/Monitoring Committee independently reviews the organization's income and expenditure at designated intervals. Members of this committee must not be involved in financial transactions under review, allowing them to conduct their monitoring responsibilities independently. Any member may request a review of financial accounts through the monitoring committee where appropriate.

2.1.2.3 Donor Privacy & Confidentiality

CRC respects the privacy of its donors and maintains the confidentiality of donor information. Donor details and donation-related personal information are handled responsibly and are not disclosed publicly without appropriate consent or legitimate organizational need.

2.1.3 Annual Financial Report

CRC GSTU prepares an Annual Financial Report to provide an overall account of the organization's financial activities during the year.

2.2 Governance

CRC GSTU is governed through a three-council structure consisting of the Permanent Council, Executive Council, and Temporary Council.

Our governance structure is designed to ensure the vision, principles, policies, and activities of CRC GSTU are carried forward through clear responsibilities and defined institutional processes.

Permanent Council

The Permanent Council is the highest decision-making body of the CRC GSTU branch. It is the principal body responsible for institutional continuity, long-term oversight, and protection of the vision, principles, and interests of CRC GSTU. It provides guidance and oversight on matters that extend beyond a specific executive term, safeguards the organization's constitutional principles, and ensures that major organizational decisions remain consistent with the Constitution. It operates as a continuing institutional body, supporting stability, accountability, and the long-term development of CRC GSTU.

The Permanent Council consists of the Founder of CRC GSTU, Chief Coordinator Committee, Office Management Committee, Financial Management Committee, Alumni Committee, and Advisory Committee. Each committee carries out specific responsibilities within its assigned area, while collectively supporting the Council in maintaining institutional continuity, oversight, accountability, and adherence to the Constitution.

Temporary Council

The Temporary Council is a dedicated body established to address specific situations, tasks, transitional requirements, or matters that require temporary governance or special arrangements. It carries out responsibilities within a defined mandate and supports CRC GSTU in managing matters that cannot be adequately addressed through its regular governance structure. The Council remains active only for the period and purpose for which it is established.

The Temporary Council consists of the Audit Committee, Discipline Committee, Election Committee, and Special Program Committee. Each committee is responsible for carrying out specific functions within the Council's assigned mandate, while collectively supporting the organization in addressing the particular situation, task, or requirement for which the Council has been established.

Executive Council

The Executive Council is the principal body responsible for the regular administration, implementation, and operational activities of CRC GSTU. It translates organizational decisions and policies into action, coordinates members, oversees programs and activities, and manages the day-to-day functioning of the organization. It operates according to the policies and directions of the Permanent Council while maintaining independence in managing its day-to-day activities based on its own work plans.

The Executive Council works through three categories of members: Advisory Members, Executive Members, and General Members. Advisory Members provide experience, guidance, and direction; Executive Members actively participate in the organization's regular and annual activities; and General Members participate in organizational activities and fulfil assigned responsibilities.

3. History of CRC foundation and CRC GSTU

3.1 How we founded

The Origin and Establishment

CRC foundation

The journey of Come for Road Child (CRC) began with a commitment to humanity, empathy, and standing beside underprivileged children. Md. Rasel Ahmed is the Founder and Founding President of CRC foundation. Over time, the organization expanded its presence across universities and educational institutions throughout Bangladesh, developing into a broad-based volunteer social organization.

The origin of CRC foundation is rooted in a profound human experience. In 2016, after receiving money to purchase clothes for Eid festival, Rasel Ahmed went shopping and, on his way, saw several children at a railway station collecting discarded materials to earn a living. The children were wearing torn and worn-out clothes, and their circumstances deeply moved him. He, together with some of his friends, used their shopping money to purchase clothes for those children.

The sense of peace and fulfilment he experienced after giving the clothes to the children inspired him to work more systematically for underprivileged children. He realized that, beyond providing temporary assistance, a collective and organized initiative was necessary to support children's education, food, clothing, and prospects for a better future.

The Beginning

CRC foundation and CRC GSTU

In search of people who could help turn this vision into reality, Rasel Ahmed discussed his ideas with a relative while staying at his maternal grandmother's home in Kashiani, Gopalganj. Through that connection, he was introduced to Md. Sakib Ahmed, who was then a first-year student of the Department of Management Studies at Gopalganj Science and Technology University (GSTU).

Rasel Ahmed shared his vision of establishing an organized initiative for underprivileged children with Sakib Ahmed. Inspired by the idea, Sakib joined him in developing plans for future activities.

Against this background, CRC foundation formally began its journey with the slogan “The World Will Be Free from Street Children by Connected Together” and was founded on three core principles brotherhood, commitment, and trust. The vision of CRC foundation was to contribute to ensuring the fundamental rights of underprivileged children. Guided by this vision, principles, they began working to provide children with education, food, clothing, healthcare, and opportunities for a safer and better future.

Sakib Ahmed subsequently brought several of his university friends into the initiative. Together, they collected information about underprivileged children in Gopalganj and conducted surveys to identify those in need. They then began providing food, clothing, and other forms of necessary assistance to the identified children on different occasions.

5 June 2016

A Significant Milestone

The date 5 June 2016 marks a significant date in the history of CRC foundation. On this day, the formal journey of CRC foundation and the establishment of the CRC GSTU branch took place simultaneously. CRC GSTU became the first branch of CRC foundation.

Md. Sakib Ahmed took the initiative to establish the branch and became its founding president. Several of his friends joined the initiative during its formative period. Through their collective efforts, dedication, and spirit of volunteerism, the initial activities of CRC GSTU were established and gradually developed.

The Expansion

CRC foundation and CRC GSTU branch

Subsequently, CRC Central branch located in Khulna was established and became the principal center for the organization's central activities. With CRC Central branch serving as the organizational hub, and in coordination with the activities of CRC GSTU, new branches began to emerge across different universities, colleges, and cities of Bangladesh, inspired by the ideals of CRC foundation.

Branches were subsequently established at institutions including Islamic University, University of Barisal, and Mawlana Bhashani Science and Technology University, as well as in different cities across the country. Each branch continues to work for underprivileged children while upholding the organization's core principles of brotherhood, commitment, and trust.

Hatekhori School

A New Chapter in Education

Another significant milestone in the history of CRC GSTU is the establishment of “Hatekhori School”. Recognizing the importance of education in the long-term development of underprivileged children, Hatekhori School was formally established at the CRC GSTU branch in 2017. It became CRC's first institutional educational initiative.

Through the school, free education was provided to underprivileged children. University students voluntarily joined as teachers, while funds and other necessary support were mobilized through the voluntary contributions and collective efforts of teachers and students to facilitate the operation of the school.

CRC foundation

A Continuing Journey

From a small initiative dedicated to standing beside underprivileged children, CRC foundation has grown into a multidimensional volunteer social organization. In addition to education and support for children, CRC foundation currently works in areas including youth social engagement, member development, campaigns and events, health and wellbeing, relief and support, awareness, and social service.

Guided by its founding principles and vision, CRC foundation continues its journey of collective action to contribute to ensuring the fundamental rights and dignity of underprivileged children and to work toward its aspiration of making the world street-child-free

4. Our Promises

4.1 Report a Concern

See a Need? Speak Up.

Do you know a child who needs help? Have you seen a situation that concerns you? Tell us.

You may know a child who is struggling to continue their education, does not have enough food or clothing, needs healthcare, or is living in circumstances where support is needed. If you see someone who needs help, we want to hear from you.

You can also tell us about any concern related to CRC GSTU's activities, conduct, policies, finances, or the behaviour of its members.

You do not need to solve the problem yourself. You only need to speak up and let us know.

Your concern may be the first step toward helping a child receive the support they need.

What Can You Report?

You may report any genuine concern that you believe requires the attention of CRC GSTU, including concerns about a child or family experiencing significant social or welfare needs.

You may also report child protection or safeguarding concerns, misconduct, harassment, discrimination, inappropriate behaviour, possible violations of CRC GSTU's policies, principles, or organizational rules, financial concerns or suspected irregularities, conflicts, disputes, or other organizational concerns. Any other matter that you believe CRC GSTU should be aware of may also be reported.

How Can You Report a Concern?

CRC GSTU provides several ways to raise a concern. You may choose the method that is most convenient for you:

- Submit an Online Concern
- Send an Email
- Contact the Hotline
- Find a Designated Person

If you prefer to discuss your concern with a designated person privately, you may do so.

Information shared through this channel will be treated confidentially and handled responsibly.

What Information Should You Provide?

Please provide as much relevant information as you can. Depending on the nature of the concern, this may include:

- What happened or what assistance is needed
- Who may be affected
- Where the situation is taking place
- When the situation occurred or was identified
- Any relevant circumstances or supporting information
- How CRC GSTU may contact you, if necessary

You do not need to know every detail before reporting a concern. If you believe someone needs help, tell us what you know.

Your Privacy Matters

Some concerns may involve sensitive information. If you choose to share your concern privately with a designated person, we will handle the information with appropriate care and confidentiality.

We ask everyone who reports a concern to respect the privacy and dignity of the people involved.

You Can Speak Up Without Fear

CRC GSTU does not tolerate retaliation against anyone who raises a genuine concern in good faith.

You should not be threatened, intimidated, punished, excluded, or otherwise disadvantaged simply because you have raised a legitimate concern.

A Concern Can Make a Difference

Your little effort will help to reach the help where it needs the most. Also it will help to reshape our organization to function better.

4.2 Social Welfare

CRC GSTU will continue to stand for a society where people are not forgotten, children are given opportunities to grow, and those facing hardship can find support, dignity, and hope.

A Commitment to the Welfare of Society

CRC GSTU is committed to contributing to the welfare of society and standing beside people who need support.

We believe that a humane society is one where people do not have to face hardship alone. Everyone deserves dignity, care, respect, and the opportunity to live a better life.

We seek to identify genuine social needs and respond with appropriate support, particularly for underprivileged children and vulnerable or disadvantaged people. Where possible, we seek to support people's education, health, nutrition, wellbeing, development, and essential needs, while contributing to a more caring and supportive community.

Our Responsibility

For us, social welfare is not merely an activity. It is a responsibility we choose to carry.

Our commitment does not imply the capacity to address every social challenge or respond to every need. Rather, it reflects our responsibility to recognize genuine needs, give due consideration to them, and seek appropriate responses within the limits of our institutional capacity and available resources.

When a need is identified, we seek to understand its circumstances, assess the appropriate course of action, and determine the most suitable form of support. Depending on the nature of the matter, this may involve direct assistance, collaboration with relevant individuals or organizations, or referral to appropriate services or authorities when the need falls beyond our capacity.

Together for a More Humane Society

We believe meaningful social welfare is built through collective responsibility. By bringing together our members, volunteers, alumni, supporters, professionals, institutions, and communities, we can turn concern into action and action into meaningful change.
